The danger passed.

The next morning Ranger Miller stopped by the campsite. He noticed muddy paw prints near the cooler.

"Looks like you had a visitor."

Leo pointed proudly at {text:child_name}.

"He scared it away!"

The ranger nodded toward {text:child_name}.

"No screaming. No running. Just clear thinking. That's real courage."

He handed {text:child_name} a small Junior Ranger patch.

"Being brave doesn't mean you're not afraid. It means you remember what to do when fear shows up."
