

Ranger Miller warned the campers to stay calm if an unwanted visitor comes sniffing around.

He said, “You might want to tuck those away before bedtime. Marshmallows are like a feast for a hungry bear. And remember, if a visitor comes sniffing around tonight, just stay calm and make lots of noise so the animal knows people are here.”

As he left camp, he told the crew with a smile, “Real courage isn’t about being unafraid. It’s about staying calm when you want to run away.”
